account of the midsummer examinations at the Wesleyan Female College, in that city, which seem to have passed off in a highly successful manner. The Spectator says: "Taken in its entirety the entertainment was a very enjoyable one and exhibited the musical talents and accomplishments of the pupils in the most favorable light. The principal is a large, select and appreciative, among whom are the Rev. Mr. H. C. Johnson, and several old graduates of the College.

Respecting the examination of certain classes the Operator says:

"Ye Gentle Birds," a song by Miss Gage Smith—very sweet and sweetly sung.

"Watch and Pray," a very beautiful sacred song, sung by the Rev. Mr. Wells, of New York, admirably rendered.

The fourth class in French was next examined by Miss Higgs, the instructor in that language. The members of this class have been receiving instructions in French only about ten months, and certainly exhibited a remarkable degree of proficiency in the language. At the time, Miss Bowell, of Belleville, was individually complimented by her teacher for diligence and rapid advancement.

"Best Collection of Pressed Flowers."
"First Honor—To Miss Emily A. Hunt

 Second Honors (equal)—Misses Gracie L.
 Smith; Alice E. Lukes, Newark; Mary
 M. Beatty, Orem; Carrie H. Bowell, Belleville; and Maggie M. Graham, Fort Belv.

The examinations of this College closed on Wednesday forenoon, the whole number of classes examined being fifty-seven. The Spectator says:—

All did exceedingly well, and redacted much credit upon the efficiency of the several teachers under whose guidance they had received instruction.

Yours very truly,

Amongst the closing exercises was reading compositions. The Spectator says:—
"Miss Nellie Sawyer, of Hamilton, read a touching and pleasing, yet saddening theme, called 'Hushed Voices.' It was somewhat shorter than many of the other themes, but amply compensated for brevity by beauty of expression. It was listened to with interest."

to throughoutly marked interest; and a few cheeks grew damp with tears as she referred lovingly to the memory of a deceased schoolmate, Miss Frankie Wood.

"The beautiful Hymn, commencing 'Dearest Sister, thou hast left us,' was feelingly sung by Misses Lincoln and Allison, and those who had withstood the moving scenes of the preceding time, broke down when the singers' voices trembled with emotion and paid to the sacred memory of the dead, the tribute of unbidden tears."

The next term will commence on the 8th of September.

To the Editor of the Daily Intelligencer.

DEAR SIR.—Since writing my last epistle I have allowed a good deal of time to pass away without an attempt to occupy any of your valuable space. The fact is, I have no news to give you, other than what the newspapers contain, and I don't see that much benefit can accrue from re-writing what has been printed. I can only say that my father reads something like the following: "I have seen 'stolen negroes'—a very strange lents produced—a so excellent that certain parties wished to have it published, but my maternal relative, knowing a little more about it's origin than the others, replied that "as it had been once printed already, there was no use going to the expense of a second edition; unless the original copies were all sold."—Now I feel something like this in reference to any news can let you have from Halifax. But I shall attempt to summarize what you probably know already.

First then—a great sensation has been created by the arrival of the 73th Highlanders. They are certainly a splendid body of men, though a certain portion of the band, due to their Scotch descent, have their peculiar dress. It is the most droll and odd sight you can see Consequently, every North Briton feel himself in conscience and honor bound to believe that there hasn't been the like of the 78th here since the 42nd left, nearly twenty years ago. riages, conveying guests to balls, and similar parties, &c. A grand dinner was given to the Honour, Sir Henry B. Doyle, to the members of the various Houses of the Legislature, the city Fathers, Officers of the Garrison, and other favorites of fortune. Through some mistake (I suppose) on the part of the Adjutant or private Secretary, I was not invited! It evidently is not known at headquarters, that I am a member of the Council of the National Land price had been out of the market for some time in Ontario, and thus a fair opportunity was afforded to the Government to make towards a liberal sale. But returning from a friend's residence about ten o'clock, my way led past Governor's House, so that I saw a brilliant illumination, and a large crowd collected in the park, listening to the feet and instruments of music, which came floating through the open windows, and out upon the evening air. As A. Ward would say: The ball was gold found. The place has been visited by gentlemen from Woodstock and Richmond, some of them old Californians, and the results of their progress have been made known through a thorough examination. Immediately after the discovery of the gold, a Company was formed, who divided the mine into twenty-five shares; fifteen were taken by the discoverers, and the rest, each, the remaining ten being still in the market. A number of specimens of rich lead-bearing quartz had been taken from the lead, among them one weighing three pounds, which was suggested as being pure gold about the size of a pea. A specimen of quartz was subjected to a rigid analysis by Professor Bailey of the University of California, who announced that it contained no silver, and that the water flows into the river contiguous to the mine. A large number of gentlemen from Woodstock, many of whom are old miners, have been to the mine, and have explored the river some distance below Furcher's Mill, and found strong indications of gold in the mineral sand. The Century Plant, now about to flower at the same time as the Agave, at Rochester, New York, is the Agave Americano folio variegato, a striped leaved American Aloe, (we believe) which is very rarely here ever flowered before in this country. It was introduced here, and was purchased by the late Hon. John Bird, of Canandaigua, New York, in the year 1825, and has since been in our possession at that time was supposed to be nine or ten years old. Owing to its large size, and being so tenderly, it was placed at Rochester and placed in our green-house, and has since been in our possession ever since. On the 25th of April, 1869, indications of its flowering were observed, and on the 26th of May, it began to bloom, we determined to particularly observe the growth of the flower stem, and the growth of the leaves. A Journal of its growth since the 5th of May, is given below.

that a plot of the size could produce so many good "fartures" in which we had almost no doubt of the success of the project. The Lovers Walk, of itself so suggestive of a man's good desirable spot for a walk of that kind, was a fine, wide, level, grassy area, a magnificent view of the town and harbor, and far off in the south, a glimpse of the waters of the harbor. The view was so good that I could almost hear the cheering of the large crowd assembled on the hill overlooking the dock to witness our departure. I was so glad to see the boys and hearty shake hands with our friends. Boys and I, however, were left behind, our steamship was so full of passengers that we could not take. Eleven o'clock, and home we are again, meeting the hearty welcome of our friends.
